included in our basic training course. These topics are, in fact, presented, although they are basic subjects and are unclassified. We cannot modify our basic course to delete these subjects and we do not want to exclude these foreign students from portions of the scheduled course unless it is absolutely essential to do so.

7. (C) It is requested that you examine the attached curriculum schedule and determine whether there is a valid objection to presenting this training to foreign students from the countries discussed above. The objective of OSI in presenting this training is, of course, to reinforce our working relationship with the local national security and investigative agencies. If you have overriding objections, they should be specifically stated so we can determine our course of action with respect to training students from these countries.

Sincerely

ARTHUR W. HYLAND, Lt Colonel, USAF
Commandant
USAF Special Investigations School
The Inspector General
